Our Story

Thanks to the funding from the Franco-German University and the Franco-German Youth Office, the Young Security Conference has been connecting an intergenerational audience of young professionals since 2020. The conference critically discusses and reflects on diverse topics related to the EU's security and defence roadmaps, as well as recent political innovations.

With a mixture of sessions dedicated to our fellows and the public, we try to bridge the gap between academics, practitioners, and civil society. Through an original, dynamic, and innovative approach to interpreting international security, the YSC aims to keep up with the fast pace at which the world is changing.

“By bringing together young security professionals and future leaders, the YSC represents a novel concept within the area of international security. Outstanding speakers and young researchers exchanged input and worked together to come up with truly innovative proposals”

- Costanza Pestarino, YSC 2020 participant from Italy

“As politicians keep repeating, our world is changing rapidly. As such, fresh and innovative strategic thinking about current international developments is needed. And that’s all the Young Security Conference is about.” - Romain Le Quiniou, YSC 2020 participant from France.

This Edition

The 2022 edition of the YSC is guided by two geopolitical dimensions - the Franco-German and transatlantic relationship - within five thematic pillars: Climate Security, Cybersecurity, European Neighbourhood Security, Health Security, as well as European Sovereignty and Autonomy. An additional focus lies on the ongoing war in Ukraine and its consequences for European foreign and security policy.

The future of the European Union (EU) depends on its public support. The same applies to EU security and defence policies today. Our Franco-German and transatlantic seminars connect young, innovative thinkers with leading policy analysts, decision-makers, and academic experts.
